Ten top tips for a longer lasting timber coating

1. Doormats at all exterior doors, to trap dirt and grit from outdoors, before it gets to the floor.
2. Encourage of checking the soles of your shoes for gravel and grit caught in the treads.
3. All 'moveable' pieces of furniture need soft clean pads on the bottom of legs or supports.
4. Rubber feet on items such as dining room chairs.
5. Apply floor protector pads to heavy items of furniture.
6. Always remember to pick up furniture rather than slide it across the floor.
7. Floor guards enable you to move your appliances forward for servicing without gouging your floor. Some areas always experience more wear than others (example: under the office chairs) Use thin non slip protective mats in these areas.
8. Rugs can be used in high-traffic areas to minimize damage. Make sure any rugs are kept clean and dry. Have them shaken out and vacuumed regularly.
9. High heels concentrate a person's weight on a small point (60kg person = approx 150kg per sq. cm when taking a normal step). This kind of force can damage many types of flooring, fracturing ceramic tiles and perforating vinyl, as well as denting wood floors. While high heels in good repair may not damage wood floors, discourage high heels where practical.
10. Spills from the food and liquids are usually no problem if wiped up in good time.
